Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 17 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry evening, with clear spells. Fine Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry overnight, and rather chilly in places. Clear spells are likely, with the chance of a localised and patchy frost developing in prone rural spots. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:
A largely fine day, with some sunny spells. Cloud will gradually thickens from the west however, with an increasing risk of rain later, although mainly after dusk. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Often wet Tuesday and Wednesday, with outbreaks of rain, although some drier intervals and feeling mild. Perhaps drier, but also much windier Thursday, with coastal gales, though low confidence,.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.